

3. If I were to recommend a novel to someone, I would recommend Lullabies for Little Criminals. The subject matter is controversial and complex, the language is very simple. It is easy to relate to the main character, Baby, because she talks like a regular human being. In turn, because Baby is so relatable, I care more about her and her questionable, often depressing actions. What novel would you recommend and why?